

ABSTRACT

A visible electronic tag and system aiming at displaying contents stored in the electronic tags mainly has an electronic tag body and a display module. The electronic tag is directly connected to a display module. The reader receives the signals and stores
5 the received information in the electronic tag body. The display module then displays the information without a reader.